

Drugs and/or Alcohol Violence:

Consumption of drugs and alcohol may change a person's behavior and/or personality. Some become more violent, angered, and agitated while under the influence, increasing the risk of physical assaults, sexual assaults, and rape.

Drugs and alcohol may also be used as a weapon against a potential victim.

Remember:

Even if you took drugs or alcohol of your own free will and were then the victim of a sexual assault or other crime it was still NOT YOUR FAULT.

To Reduce Your Risk of Being Drugged:

- Know your alcohol limits
- Do not leave beverages unattended
- Do not take beverages from someone you don't know well
- Watch your bartenders carefully when they prepare your drink

If You Think You Have Been Drugged:

- If you feel extremely intoxicated after consuming a small amount of alcohol call someone you trust.
- If you feel drowsy, dizzy, confused, have double vision, headache, muscle weakness, experience nausea or vomiting shortly after consuming a small amount of alcohol, seek help immediately.
